Specifically, Velsicol is violating its NPDES Permit (NPDES permit MD0000345, State Discharge Permit 99-Dp-0014) and section 301(a) of the CWA by discharging significant quantities of phosphorus in its industrial wastewater (via outfall 001) and bis (2-Ethylhexyl) phthalate ("BEHP") in its untreated stormwater (via outfall 002). Velsicol's NPDES permit does not authorize the discharge of phosphorus from outfall 001, or BEHIP from outfall 002, and Velsicol did not adequately disclose these discharges such that they were within the reasonable contemplation of the Maryland Department of the Environment ("MDE") during the permitting process. In addition, the pond located on property owned by Velsicol across Route 297 from the facility ("off-site pond") is continually discharging phosphorus via a pipe into an unnamed tributary of Morgan Creek without an NPDES permit in violation of section 301(a) of section 301(a) of the CWA.

The precise nature of the violations for which Ms. Nilson intends to file a citizen suit is not clear from the notice. Her claims may include a personal injury claim for hydrochloric acid dioxin poisoning and claims for a failure to perform nondiscretionary duties under the Clean Water and Clean Air Acts. The claims apparently arise out of the dumping of waste products by Green Valley, a construction company. These activities, Ms. Nilson's notice would suggest, violate POTW pretreatment standards under CWA section 307 as well as an NPDES permit and the State of California Health and Safety Code. It appears that Green Valley's construction activities have resulted in air emissions of toxic chemicals to which Ms. Nilson has been exposed as well as the introduction of contaminants to a POTW. Ms. Nilson has confused EPA Region IX with the "California Environmental Protection Agency" in her notice.
